About PARDUBICE

Pardubice is the largest city of the Pardubice Region. This very nice and decent city lies on the river Elbe, approx. 100 km east of Prague. The oldest preserved written reference to Pardubice goes back to the end of the 13th century. Historically Pardubice as a town is considered from sometime around 1340. Nowadays Pardubice has 91 thousand inhabitants and its 10th largest city in Czech Republic). The city has always been considered as a city of sports. Every year in October there is one of the hardest European steeplechase "Velka Pardubicka" held and so is worldwide famous speedway race "Zlata prilba" (Golden helmet). Pardubice is home to one of the top ice hockey teams in the Czech republic, HC DYNAMO Pardubice.

The city is also one of the most important industrial center of the eastern part of Czech republic. Pardubice is very popular for legendary gingerbread production and also pretty well-known all around the globe for manufacturing the Semtex explosive. Not just sport and industrial production but also education and culture – that is Pardubice city – home of "University of Pardubice" and very respected and excellent historical in building situated theatre "Vychodoceske divadlo Pardubice".

SIGHTSEEINGS

The dominant of the old town square Pernštýnské náměstí is the Green Gate Tower (60 metres high, 16th century) that is accessible for public and there is a great view of the city at the top. The remarkable monuments are also "Jonas's House" (Dum u Jonáše, 16th century), architectural jewel of the town, Marian Plague Column (17th century) and the imposing neo-renaissance Town Hall (19th century). The lovely narrow cobbled streets for pedestrians lead across the little magic square Forecastle (Příhrádek) to the early renaissance chateau with beautiful green ramparts, which are a good viewpoint on the old town.

You will get the Welcome to our town brochure with detailed information.

ACCOMMODATION

The pricing for accommodation in Czech republic is generally cheap comparing to the most of EU countries. Anyway as we understand that no budget is big enough and some teams go with low budgets, we decided to choose 3 price options. We know the hotels, worked with them already on 3 European tournaments in the past and have nothing but good experience with all of them.
